SENSORY PROFILE

New to the Nobili Sapori line: Golfera Porchetta

Made with a 100% clean recipe, Golfera porchetta is seasoned with rosemary, garlic, and a careful blend of spices, then slowly steam-roasted until meltingly tender. The result is rare: a porchetta that is both rustic and refined, rooted in Italian tradition and polished in every detail. Warm, savory, and elegantly balanced from first bite to finish.

Serving ideas: Slice thin for panini and sandwiches, layer onto antipasto and charcuterie boards, or serve warm alongside roasted vegetables and potatoes.

INGREDIENTS

Pork, salt, seasoning (swiss chard juice powder, maltodextrin), seasoning (garlic, ginger, juniper, black pepper, salt), seasoning (salt, yeast and vegetable extracts, garlic, rosemary, fennel seeds, cinnamon, coriander, cloves, anise seeds, seeds caraway), spices, seasoning (onion, salt).

TRADITION

Lavezzola, the small town in Italy's Emilia-Romagna region that is home to Golfera, has always embodied a longstanding bond between food and landscape, and is famous for traditional Italian charcuterie. Golfera has been crafting charcuterie there for over fifty years, and "new products with traditional flavor" captures what the company is all about: mortadella, salumi, cooked ham (braceri), and now porchetta, all produced with modern techniques but traditional in flavor, texture, and fragrance. Golfera holds to exacting standards of hygiene and brings a depth of culture to every preparation.

Golfera maintains complete control over its production chain, starting with animal welfare: humane feeding and breeding, and no antibiotic use after the third month of an animal's life. Their mortadellas are made with genuine "clean" labels, free of dairy, gluten, monosodium glutamate, nitrates, and nitrites.

Golfera is guided by the Zavaglia family, now in its third generation. Their dedication to quality and care extends to the environment emphasizing responsible production, with every step leading up to production taking place within a few kilometers of the Lavezzola facility, for the lowest possible environmental impact.
